Brent LSCB Thresholds Guide

A guide for those working with children & families in Brent on making referrals to access the right services at the right time

Report Author	Brent LSCB
Date Published	February 2018

This guide is aimed at all practitioners and volunteers supporting or working with children and/or their families within statutory, voluntary, private or independent organisations in Brent. It aims to help individuals and organisations when making a referral for services to ensure children and families get the right level of support at the right time. It should be read alongside the London Child Protection Procedures and the London Threshold: Continuum of Help and Support.

Children can move from one threshold level to another – or 'step up' or 'step down' from levels - as their needs become complex. Children's needs can change over time and organisations may need to offer support at more than one level of need. To understand the right level of support that a child, and/or their family, needs it is essential to identify the following as a whole at every assessment.

Child's Needs + History + Family Factors + Environmental Factors

The Early Help Assessment (EHA) is a simplified version of the Common Assessment Framework (CAF) that reflects the Signs of Safety approach. The Early Help Assessment aims to help ensure families get the right help, at the right time as quickly as possible. A range of early help services are available in Brent including support from Brent Children's Centres and a key worker approach from Family Solutions who work with children aged 0-18 years and their families. For more information on Early Help Assessment go to Brent Council: Getting an Early Help Assessment.

Referrals for help and support for children and/or their families, should go to Brent Family Front Door (BFFD) which incorporates Brent's Multi-Agency Safeguarding Hub (MASH). The Brent Family Front Door is a multi-agency service that includes children's social care, police and health to provide quick information sharing and risk analysis to all referrals where there may be a risk to a child. This supports decision making about what services children and / or their families may receive.

The Brent Family Front Door may signpost, or refer families onto appropriate services. This may include a referral to Brent Children's Social Care for a Child & Family Assessment (CFA) or initiating Child Protection Enquiries (Section 47) where a child may be at significant risk of harm.

You can contact Brent Family Front Door

020 8937 4300

(9.00am to 5.00pm Monday to Friday)

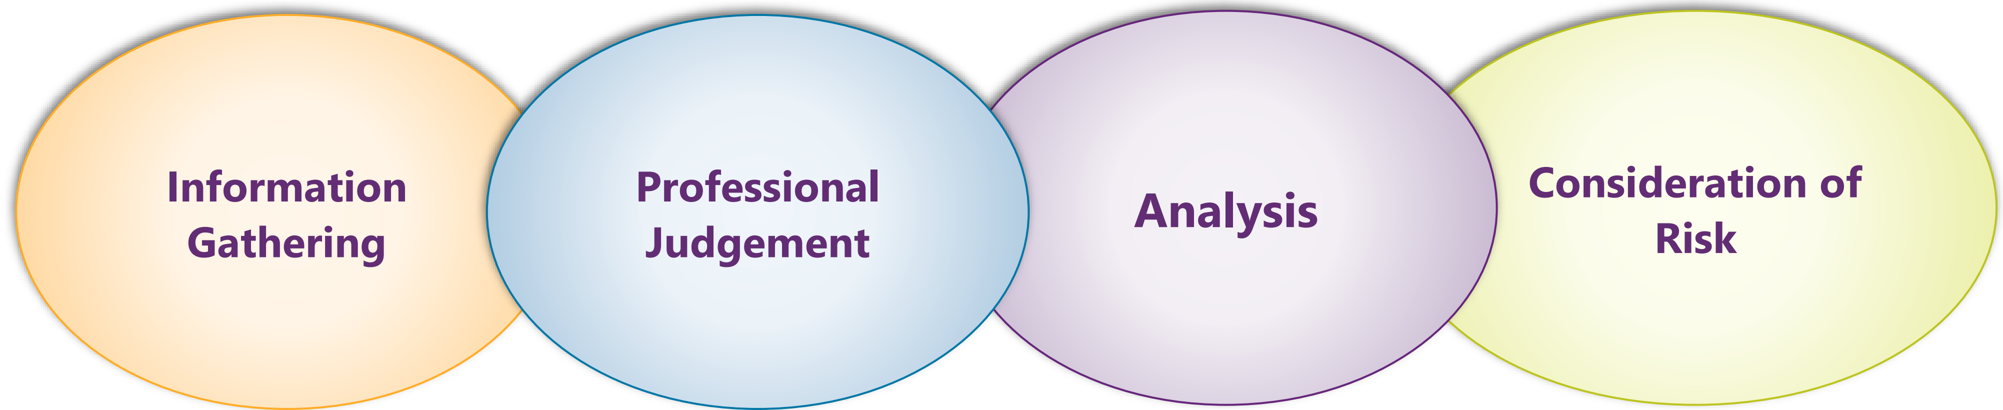
Outside of normal office hours contact the emergency duty team on: 020 8863 5250

If a child is in immediate danger you should contact the police on 999 or an ambulance.

Assessments consider key factors relating to child's developmental needs, carers parenting capacity as well as family and environmental factors.

In order to intervene at the earliest point, and to target help and support in a way that makes a difference to the lives of families, a good quality assessment and action plan are required.

A good assessment involves...



Every assessment should be child centred and focused on outcomes

Good assessments also support professionals to understand whether a child has needs relating to their care or a disability. The specific needs of disabled children and young carers should recognised and prioritised in the assessment process.

APPENDIX C:

EXAMPLE CASE STUDIES

It is important to note that assessment and need is not static; the needs of a child / young person / family will change over time.

The case studies over following pages have been designed to highlight that assessment and need is fluid.

CASE STUDY - GP

Child J

J is 4 years old boy. In the last year, J has developed eczema for which his GP has prescribed creams for itchiness, oil for bath and advised parents on how to identify what triggers the flare ups. This goes well and J's health needs continue to be met within universal services (level 1).

J's parents separate so J lives with mother and visits father alternate weekends. J's mother sometimes forgets to send J's medication with him to father. J feels creams are a waste of time as he is often well. J's father has just got a dog which exacerbates J's eczema, making him 'chesty' with coughing at night. Father feels mother is making J complain.

One night at his father's J becomes very short of breath due to a viral upper respiratory tract infection and is taken to UCC. Inhalers are given whilst J is transferred to A&E. J's health needs are not being prioritised and he is at risk of significant harm. The admitting Paediatric Team refer to Children's Social Care as mother is shouting and blaming father because of the dog, and his insistence that J stayed despite being unwell. Father did not feel his smoking was an issue regarding J's health. Social Care started a Section 47 enquiry (Level 4) as parents disagreed on how to meet J's health needs.

J was discharged with inhalers for cough and maintenance. GP saw J two weeks after admission where J said he was full of energy and chest was open. J now always has inhalers in his bag and one at school to use before PE. Father has given the dog to his sister. Because J feels smoke makes him cough more father has agreed to smoke outside and has sought advice to stop smoking. Both parents attend asthma clinic appointments with GP.

CASE STUDY – YOUNG CARER

Family AN

AN are British Asian family of six including mother, father and 4 children. Child A is a female aged 18, Child B is male aged 17, Child C is female aged 17 and Child D is male aged 9. Mother has a complex chronic condition impacting on her mobility. Father has sleep apnoea which restricts his ability to care for mother. B has complex needs requiring a high level of support. D has additional needs supported by his current school placement. A and C are young carers. A did attend college full time but struggled to maintain attendance and course commitments because of caring responsibilities. C's school attendance and behaviour has deteriorated due to impact of caring responsibilities.

Those involved with family are worried about: -
A and C have voiced that they find it difficult to maintain caring responsibilities for their family and that this impacts on their ability to meet their full potential educationally.
A Young Carers Assessment was requested via a referral to MASH, but there was a lack of clarity about whose responsibility it was to complete referral.

A has difficulty in completing college work or accepting shifts for her part time job because of feeling obligated to her family.
Both parents find it difficult to attend all appointments for their children and themselves due to medical disabilities and limited finances.
Parents feel unable to implement consistent boundaries for children that has led to chaotic home environment.

The family meet Troubled Families criteria because - i) children were 'in need' of help, ii) adults were out of work or at risk of financial exclusion, and iii) family members had range of health problems. Following the referral, it was felt the following needed to happen: -
Relevant professionals need to consider appropriate service to complete Young Carers Assessment to provide a comprehensive view of the impact of caring responsibilities on A and C.
Parents to encourage children to engage in their education.
Parents to follow suggestions made by Adult Social Care to reduce A and C's caring duties by purchasing additional personal care and support services for household cleaning and food preparation.

The 'Team Around the Family' included Family Solutions, school, college, medical services, CAMHS, police, Brent Young Carers and Adult Social Care.
Interventions with the family led to: -
Family being supported in making and sustaining changes in family functioning and reducing conflict within family home as well effectively engaging with specialist support services,

A and C are attending education and receiving targeted additional support as required. A is working part time.

CASE STUDY – INCLUSION SUPPORT TEAM

Child A

A, a 5-year old boy of Somalian ethnic origin recently started in reception. A's primary school refers him to Brent Inclusion Support Team for support in managing his behaviour in school. A was struggling to follow instructions, verbally communicate his needs or make friendships. When asked to complete tasks A shouted, hit out, ran away and spat at or verbally abused staff. A's play with peers often became physical towards other children and was often removed from the situation due to his erratic behaviour. A was often reluctant to come to school and could be upset in the mornings. A has been unable to stay in class for more than 1 hour and is regularly aggressive towards peers and staff. School felt unable to manager A's behaviour and feelings whatever intervention they used was not working. A was at risk of exclusion having been excluded several times as staff / other children in school were deemed to be unsafe due to his behaviour and outbursts. Those more closely involved were mindful of A's vulnerabilities but had difficulty understanding

A is a looked after child (LAC) having been removed from parents' care along with his 6-year old brother who has special educational needs (SEN). The siblings lived with Somali foster carers for 5 months before A started in reception. Both siblings witnessed domestic abuse between parents. Their mother has significant mental health issues and father appeared to have unidentified SEN. A became extremely attached to the foster carer and found it difficult to leave to go to school. The foster carer is very protective of A suggesting to school they are lenient on him and let him stay at home when he needs to.

A's allocated social worker has good relationship with foster carer and ensured A was assessed by Child Development Clinic who gave a diagnosis of and diagnosed with developmental delay and were of the view A could be attending school and making progress in a mainstream school. An educational psychology assessment has found A to have significant difficulties in his expressive language but strengths in other areas.

The referral to the Inclusion Support Team resulted in a family therapist and Inclusion Support Officer being allocated. A 'team around the child' was established in school, also included Virtual School, EYFS Inclusion Manager, the allocated social worker, education psychologist, class teacher and teaching assistant who supported him.

The Virtual School teacher, Educational Psychologist, Inclusion Support Officer and Family Therapist agreed a support plan for A in school. This offered suggestions to help create a safe environment for A within school and for A to trust adults around him.

It recommended ways to
i) manage A's behaviour that offered understanding and containment and;
ii) support him to calm down when anxious or upset to de-escalate potential aggressive behaviours

Strategies were developed for engaging him in school activities and enhancing his relationships with other children. Plan also supported school with process of applying for the Education, Health and Care Plan (EHCP). A's class teacher was given the confidence to try all advice offered. Gradually things started improving for A and he became more settled in school. A became able to stay in class for half or full days and formed positive relationships with staff. His expressive language improved and his behaviour became less disruptive.

The Inclusion Support Team were then able to have discussions with the foster carer about supporting school in managing A's difficulties and encouraging him to go to school even if he felt anxious or unsure. The relationship between the foster carer and school became more positive over the course of the Inclusion Support team's involvement. A few months later A's EHCP was finalised and it was agreed a specialist school would best meet his needs now. The transition was successful.
