

FINAL FAREWELL FAMILY TIME

This protocol is intended as guidance for professionals, when planning and enabling final farewell family time between children and their birth families.

Key Principles

Reduction in Family Time will commence from the point that the Courts have granted a Care Order and Placement Order.

The plan of reduction will be specific to each child's needs but consideration should be given to combining both virtual video call time and face-to-face family time, until a potential adoptive placement has been found for the child. This will support the child in having some familiarity to their birth family which will support a better final farewell contact (younger children can often be unsettled in their final farewell contact as they are not familiar with their birth family due to longer periods of not seeing them).

The final farewell family time will take place before any introductions between the child and a new adoptive family and, with sufficient time to elapse for the child/children to have some time to grieve the 'loss' of this relationship before they are asked to engage and make new relationships with a permanent family. As a guide, for older children there should be at least a one-month gap between their final farewell family time with their birth family and meeting their adoptive family. For younger children/babies, the gap should be no less than two weeks.

Where there has been an agreement that birth parents will meet the prospective adoptive family, the final farewell family time will take place before any such meeting.

Notice to Birth Parents/Family of reduction to family time

Action to be taken	Who is Responsible for Actions
Birth Parents/Family to be given adequate notice of the family time reduction plan - at least 4 weeks (when the Final Care Plan is being completed for Court). This notice should be given to Birth Parents/Family in person, followed by written confirmation. There needs to be some planning around how the Birth Parents/Family will be supported when receiving this information i.e. ensure that they have family/friend with them. Family Time Worker to be notified of the reduction plan and information of when the Birth Parents/Family will be informed of the reduction plan, as this could affect the planned family time sessions currently taking place. Family Time Worker can also help Birth Parents/Family in understanding the reduction plan.	Child's Social worker
