

HOW CAN I BE REFERRED TO BWA?

Individuals who require help and support around domestic abuse can refer themselves directly for support via our Helpline.

When a survivor contacts our Helpline, one of the team will take their information and may also complete a risk assessment. They will be able to provide safety planning advice and direct the survivor to other services if they need them.

A professional such as a social worker, police officer, housing officer or your GP can also refer you. Professionals who would like to make a referral can find a copy of our referral form on our website:

www.berkshirewomensaid.org.uk

WHAT HAPPENS ONCE I HAVE BEEN REFERRED?

Once a referral is received, this will be passed to the relevant BWA team who will review the referral to ensure that the person being referred meets the criteria for each of our services. For refuge, this will mean that we assess whether someone is safe in the area, or if we have a space that will meet the survivor's needs.

BWA will maintain contact with the survivor and professional throughout the referral process to keep them updated on the progress.

DO YOU HAVE TO SHARE MY INFORMATION

Information that you share with us will be confidential within BWA unless there are exceptional circumstances. We aim to get your consent to share information unless it is considered that doing so will increase someone's risk. Although we aim to get your consent to share your information, in exceptional circumstances we may have to override your consent for example, if we believe you or someone else may be at risk of significant harm.

Outreach support can provide general information about a range of areas linked to your safety and wellbeing. Whilst BWA may not provide these services directly, we will make sure you know your options.
